

Abstract

The invention relates to a polymer solvent binding agent for pigments based on methylmethacrylate. The binding agent is a polymer made of methylmethacrylate and one or several additional radical polymerisable compounds and is used in the form of a partially polymerised sirup.